Re: 3Com Corporation v. Capital 4, Inc., et al

Dear Dan:

On April 2, 2008, we had a telephone conversation during which you informed me that it is your position that Capital 4 somehow waived the attorney-client privilege with respect to communications with Simon Hughes based on the filing of the Texas Network of Youth Services v. 3Com Corporation action. As you will recall, I advised you that Capital 4 did not waive the privilege. Given our divergent positions, we agreed that the dispute should be resolved advance of the upcoming depositions, either amongst ourselves through the exchange of correspondence or, if necessary, by the Court. You agreed to provide us with the authority supporting your conclusion.

To date, we have not received anything from you on this subject. Accordingly, we presume that you have conducted your research and concluded that your novel waiver argument is not supported by any existing authority. Please confirm, as soon as possible, that this issue is resolved and that we will not require judicial intervention.

Very truly yours,

/s/

Thomas Vays
